Harvard-Bound! Continued from page 3

Domenic Sciamanna said Matt had long said he wanted to go to University of Pennsylvania, but switched his preference to Harvard after reviewing the business programs.

"We're extremely proud," Mr. Sciamanna said.

Matt's parents praised the administration and teachers at Bo Manor for encouraging their son to work toward his dreams. They are appreciative of the special interest that school principal, Wenita Fleury, has taken in helping Matt with his college applications.

The oldest of the Sciamanna's three children is a student at University of Maryland. The youngest child, Catherine, is a tenth grader at Bohemia Manor. She has her sights on Dartmouth and has aspirations to become a physician.

Mrs. Sciamanna said their children are motivated and they are happy to see that Matt is the latest one to achieve a major goal.

"He shot for the top and achieved it," she said.

Archeological Workshop Is Planned

The 24th annual Workshop in Archeology is planned for March 28 at the Smithsonian Environmental Research Center in Edgewater. The program has been created by the Maryland Historical Trust and the Archeological Society of Maryland, Inc. Workshop topics include: early Chesapeake taverns, 1812 history in Patterson Park, artifacts of religion and magic, how to handle old ordnance and tagging wrecks.
