Fair Hill Nature Center Receives Funds For New Energy Curriculum

The Fair Hill Environmental Foundation and Nature Center starts its fall programs with a $7500 donation from Old Dominion Electric Cooperative.

The Fair Hill Nature Center hosts over 9,000 students annually from local schools to introduce them to our local natural resources and the protection they require. "During a visit to the Nature Center, I got to see first-hand the impact the programs have on the kids", said Brian Heinbaugh, Plant General Manager. "They go out on the trails and see for themselves how we impact our environment."

"We are very grateful for the donation," said Guylaine Thomas, the Nature Center's Administrative Director. "The additional funds will go directly to program development and supplies." We are also looking forward to collaborating with ODEC's Environmental Health & Safety Coordinator, Jennifer Jackson on the possible development of an energy based curriculum, this will be a great opportunity!" ODEC has also volunteered some manpower for maintenance
