Maryland's Firearm Deer Season Is Here

Maryland's two-week firearm deer season opens November 26 and runs through December 10, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources announced this week. Hunters can use firearms to harvest sika and white-tailed deer during this season.

"The two-week firearm season is our most popular hunting opportunity," said Wildlife and Heritage Service Director Paul Peditto. "Not only is the harvest over this period a critical part of the department's deer management program, it also allows hunters to spend time outdoors with family and friends after the holidays."

The bag limits for the season are:

Statewide - one antlered white-tailed deer and three sika deer with no more than one with antlers.

Region A - one antlerless white-tailed deer. Antlerless deer season is open December 9 and 10 on private land and December 10 on public land. Hunters may only take two antlerless deer total for the license year.

Region B - Ten antlerless white-tailed deer. One bonus antlered white-tailed deer may be taken per year during a weapon season of the hunter's choice. A hunter must first take two antlerless white-tailed deer and purchase a Bonus Antlered Deer Stamp before taking a second antlered deer.

New this year:

-Sika deer season is open in all counties

-Hunters in Caroline County may use a rifle or handgun during the firearm seasons

-Changes have been made to the Chronic Wasting Disease Management Area

Hunters are reminded an antler point restriction has been instituted for white-tailed deer. One may harvest up to two antlered deer per license year, which have two or fewer points on each antler present. Any additional antlered deer taken within the legal seasons and bag limits must have at least three points on one antler. License junior hunters are exempt from the restrictions.

Those hunters who use tree stands are strongly advised to wear a full-body safety harness, which should be secured at all times, including while climbing up or down the stand. Using a sliding knot, commonly known as a prussic knot, attached to a line that is tied above the tree stand allows hunters to be secure from when they leave the ground to when they return. The Department of Natural Resources' website includes other hunter safety information.
